1. There are presently ten military automotive districts, of which two are for training. These are located as follows: Budapest (two, one of which is for training), Székesfehérvár, Pécs, Kecskemét, Szeged, Szolnok, Debrecen, Miskolc (two, one of which is for training). The districts are organized on a peace-time basis, except for the training districts which are assigned to the divisions (sic).
2. Each automotive district is assigned 20 trucks, 4 command cars, 1 kitchen truck, 1 repair car, 1 fuel truck, and three automobiles. In case of mobilization, the number of vehicles for each automotive district will be increased to 80. In order to supplement these departments, it is intended to activate 24 others, which will be administratively subordinate to the divisions.
3. There are large motor pools near the Zach Street barracks in Budapest and at the sheds of the industrial hall (Iparcsarnok) of Városliget. In the fall of 1950, the motor pools contained 3,040 trucks and 576 passenger cars.
4. A school for licensed drivers is at No. 4 Zach Street, Budapest. The course lasts a year and is attended by 100 students, 50 of whom are from the military with over one year of service and 50 are civilians designated by the Party. The school has an automotive training department.
5. The central school for automotive training was also at Zach Street in Budapest at the end of October 1950. It was transferred to the former police barracks on Hunyadi Street in Miskolc. This school has an automotive training department.
6. A central storage depot for gasoline and lubricants is located at Pongrac Street, Budapest, behind the Zach Street barracks. It has a practice runway.
